Set during the Great Depression, this book follows Dorrie and her friends as they encounter shipwrecks, villainy and treasure. This adventure story was long-listed for the 2012 Davitt Awards for crime writing and is perfect for junior fiction readers. “While the plot is fast-paced and interesting, it is the realistic and affectionate descriptions of Dorrie's life, family and friends that are the true highlight of The Ghost at the Point. The 1930s setting offers Dorrie the freedom that most children won't dream of today, and as such provides the perfect backdrop for this feel-good adventure.” Books+Publishing “A very satisfactory adventure story ... The time and the landscape of the island are palpably authentic, as is the character of the self-reliant, determined and capable Dorrie and her warm relationship with Gah. With a ripper plot ... and written in the jargon of the day, this is a corker yarn!” Magpies magazine “The Ghost at the Point is a gripping adventure story for children with all the elements necessary ... The blend of ghost story and gentle mystery will definitely appeal to the intended audience.” Reading Time magazine “This is a gentle, involving story of Dorrie and her grandfather finding something more than they bargained for in their isolated outpost. Dorrie is an inviting character, one whom readers will take to heart ... An adventure story with heart.” ReadPlus “Although seemingly a ghost story in the early chapters, it becomes a blend of mystery and action, as Dorrie and her two new friends are unwittingly drawn into a hunt for treasure ... An action-packed read, suitable for upper primary aged readers.” Aussie Reviews
