Understanding Ecocriticism and Its Relevance in Indian Literature

Ecocriticism, as a literary theory and analytical framework, examines the relationship between literature and the physical environment. It critiques human interactions with nature and explores how cultural productions reflect ecological concerns. In the context of Indian literature, ecocriticism is particularly relevant due to India's rich biodiversity, extensive rural landscapes, and the impact of rapid industrialization and urbanization on natural habitats. Indian authors often incorporate environmental elements into their narratives, providing insight into the socio-cultural dynamics that influence ecological thought. The study of ecocriticism among Indian authors reveals a nuanced understanding of nature that combines traditional ecological knowledge with contemporary environmental activism.

Defining Ecocriticism

Ecocriticism is broadly defined as the study of literature and environment from an interdisciplinary point of view, where literature is analyzed for its ecological content and implications. It seeks to uncover how texts portray nature, environmental degradation, and the human-nature relationship. This field has expanded to include issues of sustainability, climate change, and environmental justice, making it highly pertinent to Indian literary studies where environmental issues are deeply intertwined with social and political realities.

Significance in Indian Literary Studies

The relevance of ecocriticism in Indian literature lies in its capacity to address the unique environmental challenges faced by the country, such as deforestation, pollution, and displacement of indigenous communities. Indian authors often use ecological themes to critique colonial and postcolonial exploitation of natural resources, bringing to light the cultural and ethical dimensions of environmental degradation. This makes ecocriticism a crucial lens for understanding how Indian literature contributes to global environmental discourse.

Historical and Cultural Context of Ecocriticism in India

The emergence of ecocriticism in Indian literature cannot be separated from the country's historical and cultural milieu. India's ancient texts, folklore, and oral traditions have long reflected a deep reverence for nature, which informs contemporary ecological narratives. Understanding this background is essential for appreciating how modern Indian authors engage with ecocritical themes.

Traditional Ecological Knowledge in Indian Texts

Indian classical literature, including Sanskrit epics, religious scriptures, and regional folklore, often presents nature as sacred and interconnected with human life. Concepts such as prakriti (nature) and dharmic responsibilities towards the environment are embedded in ancient texts like the Vedas, Upanishads, and the Mahabharata. These traditions provide a foundation for ecological awareness that modern Indian authors draw upon to critique contemporary environmental issues.

Colonial Impact and Environmental Degradation

Colonialism introduced new dynamics in the exploitation of India's natural resources, leading to deforestation, mining, and changes in agricultural practices. Indian literature from the colonial and postcolonial periods often reflects the ecological consequences of imperial policies. Ecocriticism in Indian literature thus frequently intersects with postcolonial studies, emphasizing resistance to environmental oppression and the reclamation of indigenous ecological knowledge.

Prominent Indian Authors and Their Ecocritical Works

Several Indian authors have made significant contributions to ecocriticism by embedding ecological concerns within their literary works. Their writings explore environmental themes through diverse genres, including poetry, novels, and essays.

Arundhati Roy

Arundhati Roy is renowned for incorporating ecological and social justice issues in her works. Her novel The God of Small Things highlights the interconnectedness of human and environmental suffering, while her essays address deforestation, industrial pollution, and the displacement of indigenous peoples. Roy's activism and literary output make her a key figure in ecocriticism Indian authors advocate.

Mahasweta Devi

Mahasweta Devi's works focus on marginalized communities and their relationship with the environment. Her stories often depict the struggles of tribal populations against environmental exploitation and displacement caused by mining and industrial projects. Through her vivid portrayal of the natural world and indigenous resistance, Devi's contributions are pivotal in understanding ecocritical narratives in India.

Ruskin Bond

Ruskin Bond's writings emphasize the beauty of nature and the importance of environmental conservation. His short stories and essays are infused with observations of Himalayan landscapes and the flora and fauna native to India. Bond's gentle yet profound ecological sensibilities have made his works accessible and influential in promoting environmental awareness.

Other Notable Authors

- Vikram Seth – Known for his poetic reflections on nature and urban environmental challenges.
- Kamala Markandaya – Explores rural ecology and the impact of modernization.
- Girish Karnad – Uses drama to highlight ecological and social issues.
- Anita Desai – Incorporates environmental motifs reflecting psychological and cultural conflicts.

Themes and Motifs in Indian Ecocritical Literature

Indian ecocritical literature encompasses a variety of themes and motifs that illustrate the complex relationship between humans and nature within the country's socio-political framework.

Nature as a Living Entity

Many Indian authors personify nature as a living, breathing entity deserving respect and protection. This motif aligns with traditional Indian ecological philosophies that emphasize harmony between humans and the natural world. Literature often portrays rivers, forests, and animals as characters with intrinsic value.

Environmental Justice and Indigenous Rights

A significant theme in Indian ecocriticism is the fight for environmental justice, particularly concerning indigenous populations. Writers depict the exploitation of tribal lands and the consequent loss of culture and livelihood, framing environmental degradation as a social injustice that demands attention.

Urbanization and Ecological Crisis

Rapid urban growth and industrialization in India have led to pollution, habitat destruction, and climate change concerns. Indian ecocritical literature frequently critiques these developments, highlighting the tension between progress and ecological sustainability.

Spirituality and Ecology

Spiritual reverence for nature is a recurring motif, where ecological concerns are intertwined with religious and philosophical beliefs. This theme reflects the synthesis of traditional spirituality and modern environmental consciousness in Indian writing.

Challenges and Future Directions in Ecocriticism Indian Authors Explore

Despite its growth, ecocriticism in Indian literature faces certain challenges and opportunities for further development. Recognizing these factors is essential for advancing the field and enhancing its impact.

Language and Accessibility

Many ecocritical works by Indian authors are written in regional languages, which can limit their global reach. Translating and promoting these texts is vital for broadening the scope of ecocriticism and incorporating diverse Indian perspectives.

Interdisciplinary Approaches

The complex nature of ecological issues demands interdisciplinary methods combining literature, environmental science, anthropology, and history. Indian ecocriticism increasingly embraces such approaches to deepen understanding and foster effective environmental advocacy.

Addressing Climate Change

As climate change intensifies, Indian authors are expected to engage more directly with this global crisis. Future ecocritical studies will likely focus on climate narratives, adaptation, and resilience in Indian contexts.

Promoting Environmental Awareness through Literature

Indian ecocritical literature plays a crucial role in raising environmental consciousness among readers. Authors and scholars continue to explore innovative ways to use literary art as a tool for education and activism.

1. Expanding translation efforts of regional ecological literature
2. Integrating scientific research with literary analysis
3. Encouraging collaborations between writers and environmentalists
4. Fostering community-based storytelling to preserve indigenous ecological knowledge

Frequently Asked Questions

What is ecocriticism and how is it relevant to Indian literature?

ecocriticism indian authors: The Oxford Handbook of Ecocriticism Greg Garrard, 2014-07-03 The Oxford Handbook of Ecocriticism provides a broad survey of the longstanding relationship between literature and the environment. The moment for such an offering is opportune in many respects: multiple environmental crises are increasingly inescapable at both transnational and local levels; the role of the humanities in addition to technology and politics is increasingly recognized as central for exploring and finding solutions; and the subject of ecocriticism has reached a kind of critical mass, both within its Anglo-American heartlands and beyond. From its origins in the study of American Nature Writing and British Romanticism, ecocriticism has developed along numerous theoretical, historical, cultural and geographical axes, the most contemporary and exciting of which will be represented in the Handbook. The contributors include eminent founders of the field, including Michael Branch and Richard Kerridge, a number of key 'second-wave' ecocritics, and the best up-and-coming scholars. Topics covered include: Renaissance anxieties about nature; the challenges of representing climate change; the racialization of the environment in the early 20th century; language and the concept of biosemiotics; and the possibilities for environmental humour.

ecocriticism indian authors: Ecodisaster Imaginaries in India Scott Slovic, Joyjit Ghosh, Samit Kumar Maiti, 2023-09-19 Ecodisaster Imaginaries in India: Essays in Critical Perspectives is a volume of critical essays that discuss and debate the literary and cultural representations of ecological/environmental disaster in India from the perspectives that are integral to postcolonial disaster studies and the environmental humanities. The essays offer theoretically informed readings of environmental fiction, nonfiction, and poetry among other contemporary literary genres that open our eyes to today's burning issues of global warming, climate change, pollution of air and water bodies, deforestation, and species extinction. The volume addresses the staunch ecological consciousness reflected in Rabindranath Tagore's writings from the early twentieth century, indigenous responses to ecodisaster, and the portrayal of ecodisaster in selected Indian movies which raise questions of human rights violations in the face of manmade disaster and environmental crisis.

ecocriticism indian authors: Handbook of Ecocriticism and Cultural Ecology

Hubert Zapf, 2016-05-10 Ecocriticism has emerged as one of the most fascinating and rapidly growing fields of recent literary and cultural studies. From its regional origins in late-twentieth-century Anglo-American academia, it has become a worldwide phenomenon, which involves a decidedly transdisciplinary and transnational paradigm that promises to return a new sense of relevance to research and teaching in the humanities. A distinctive feature of the present handbook in comparison with other survey volumes is the combination of ecocriticism with cultural ecology, reflecting an emphasis on the cultural transformation of ecological processes and on the crucial role of literature, art, and other forms of cultural creativity for the evolution of societies towards sustainable futures. In state-of-the-art contributions by leading international scholars in the field, this handbook maps some of the most important developments in contemporary ecocritical thought. It introduces key theoretical concepts, issues, and directions of ecocriticism and cultural ecology and demonstrates their relevance for the analysis of texts and other cultural phenomena.

ecocriticism indian authors: Material Ecocriticism

Serenella Iovino, Serpil Oppermann, 2014-09-24 Material Ecocriticism offers new ways to analyze language and reality, human and nonhuman life, mind and matter, without falling into well-worn paths of thinking. Bringing ecocriticism closer to the material turn, the contributions to this landmark volume focus on material forces and substances, the agency of things, processes, narratives and stories, and making meaning out of the world. This broad-ranging reflection on contemporary human experience and expression provokes new understandings of the planet to which we are intimately connected.

ecocriticism indian authors: Francophone Literature After the Postcolonial Age

Farid Laroussi, 2024-12-15 Francophone Literature After the Postcolonial Age argues that Francophone literature extends beyond the postcolonial critical landmarks that helped define the field since the late 1980s. Today Francophone literature maps out different paths that highlight its emancipation from both the Francophonie's cultural ascendancy and postcolonial theory's scholarly hegemony. Farid Laroussi's argument is that three main forces have reshaped the French postcolonial in the twenty-first century: digital globalization, intertextuality, and ecocriticism. With digital globalization, Francophone literature finds new voices, unfettered from former aesthetic, print and distribution diktats. Home and the exilic paradigm are redefined in the postcolonial subject's own terms. Intertextuality reconnects with poetic dialogism, sans the mimicry burden. The intertextuality challenge showcases a new writers' community, across time and cultures. The old anxiety around one's own poetic voice now provides valid responses to literary reconfigurations. The book's study cases operate around three specific pairings: Segalen/Glissant, Kafka/Maghreb literature, and Morrison/Miano. Lastly, ecocriticism, along the decolonial discourse, comes to discuss the place of the postcolonial home as well as the responsibility category. The author contends that the attention to the land cannot be separated from imaginaries, collective and individual. Francophone writers stand at the crossroads of activism and poetics moving further away from French metropolitan preoccupations.

ecocriticism indian authors: Beyond Alterity: Contemporary Indian Fiction and the Neoliberal Script Shakti Jaising, 2023-09-15 Beyond Alterity contests a core tendency in postcolonial studies as well as emerging critiques of neoliberalism—to assume that nations of the Global South are categorically distinct from their counterparts in the North and that they provide an alternative, or even an antidote, to the competitive and individualistic cultures of the advanced capitalist world. Through a textured analysis of cultural production from contemporary India, Shakti Jaising argues that neoliberal capitalism has produced significant continuities in class dynamics and subjective experience across the North-South divide—continuities that are at least as worthy of our consideration as differences arising from colonialism and its aftereffects. The book engages an array of political, economic, and cultural narratives, while focusing in particular on widely circulating Indian English-language novels and their audio-visual adaptations that demonstrate the growing currency of a neoliberal script extolling values like privatization and deregulation as conduits to both individual growth and national development, as well as freedom from poverty. With their potent enactments of personal and national maturation, contemporary Indian novels and films offer striking illustrations of the imaginative means by which the neoliberal script proliferates— even as economic precarity and inequality worsen in India, much like elsewhere in the world. Whereas literary scholars tend to approach the Indian English novel as an exemplar of resistance from the formerly colonized world, Beyond Alterity contends that far from inevitably modelling resistance, this genre's contemporary examples instead encapsulate the challenges of disentangling literature from the all-pervasive logics and narratives of neoliberal capitalism.

ecocriticism indian authors: River Fiction of India Subhadeep Ray, 2025-03-31 This book establishes river fiction as an identifiable genre-fiction. It argues that rivers and riverbeds—through myths and legends, ecological and environmental concerns, geographical and historical realities, politics and economics around them—can provide an underlying framework to understand Indian prose fiction. With essays on river fiction across India, the volume presents a new way of understanding and reading South Asian literature. The volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of literature and literary criticism and South Asian studies.

ecocriticism indian authors: Routledge Handbook of Ecocriticism and Environmental Communication Scott Slovic, Swarnalatha Rangarajan, Vidya Sarveswaran, 2019-02-01 Ecocriticism and environmental communication studies have for many years co-existed as parallel disciplines, occasionally crossing paths but typically operating in separate academic spheres. These fields are now rapidly converging, and this handbook aims to reinforce the common concerns and methodologies of the sibling disciplines. The Routledge Handbook of Ecocriticism and Environmental Communication charts the history of the relationship between ecocriticism and environmental communication studies, while also highlighting key new paradigms in information studies, diverse examples of practical applications of environmental communication and textual analysis, and the patterns and challenges of environmental communication in non-Western societies. Contributors to this book include literary, film and religious studies scholars, communication studies specialists, environmental historians, practicing journalists, art critics, linguists, ethnographers, sociologists, literary theorists, and others, but all focus their discussions on key issues in textual representations of human-nature relationships and on the challenges and possibilities of environmental communication. The handbook is designed to map existing trends in both ecocriticism and environmental communication and to predict future directions. This handbook will be an essential reference for teachers, students, and practitioners of environmental literature, film, journalism, communication, and rhetoric, and well as the broader meta-discipline of environmental humanities.

ecocriticism indian authors: Environmental Thought in Contemporary Pakistani Fiction Sonia Irum, 2025-03-11 This book looks at Pakistani fiction from an environmental perspective, focusing on the novels of the internationally renowned author Uzma Aslam Khan. It explores the rich environmental landscapes of Khan's works and their distinctive contribution to developing Pakistani ecocriticism. The book examines the discourse on the environment in contemporary Pakistani fiction in English and the contribution of Khan's fiction, such as The Story of Noble Rot, Trespassing, Thinner than Skin, and others, towards developing ecological thinking in Pakistani literature and literary criticism. In her novels, Khan gives voice to the nonhuman or the 'Other', highlights the harmonious connections between humans and nature, and reflects on the far-reaching ecological, social, and health effects of climate change. The author showcases literary activism and analyses how the 'state' engages with the ecopolitical discourses in Pakistani society by studying the intersections of Western imperialism, militarism, state policies, capitalism, consumerism, and global climate change. The book will be of interest to students and researchers of English literature, environmental studies, ecocriticism, literary and critical studies, postcolonial studies, and indigenous studies.

ecocriticism indian authors: Ecofeminism and the Indian Novel Sangita Patil, 2019-07-08 Ecofeminism and the Indian Novel tests the theories of ecofeminism against the background of India's often different perceptions of environmental problems, challenging the hegemony of Western culture in thinking about human problems. This book moves beyond a simple application of the concepts of ecofeminism, instead explaining the uniqueness of Indian novels as narratives of ecofeminism and how they can contribute to the development of the theory of ecofeminism. In examining a selection of novels, the author argues that Indian texts conceptualize the ecological crisis more as a human problem than as a gender problem. The book proposes that we should think of ecofeminism as ecohumanism instead, seeing human beings and nature as a part of a complex web. Novels analysed within the text include Kamala Markandaya's Nectar in a Sieve (1954), Shivram Karanth's Return to Earth (2002) and Na D'Souza's Dweepa (2013). Ecofeminism and the Indian Novel will be of great interest to students and scholars of ecofeminism, ecocriticism, ecological feminism, environmental humanities, gender studies, ecological humanities, feminist studies and Indian literature.

ecocriticism indian authors: Interpreting Literature from Northeast India Margaret L. Pachau, Anjali Daimari, 2024-09-30 This book reflects the nascent sensibilities at work in literature emanating from Northeast India. It takes into account the generic diversity in works derived from the region and discusses fiction, poetry, drama, folk narratives, film adaptations as well as early missionary narratives. It covers a wide spectrum of themes such as landscape, partition, World War, history, nationalism, violence and territoriality, memory and identity. The book looks at works in English and vernacular from Northeast India states. It contextualizes developments within intellectual history and display aspects that relate to the continuing force in the ongoing study of the relationship between literature and culture studies, within a broader framework.

ecocriticism indian authors: Transcending the Postmodern Susana Onega, Jean-Michel Ganteau, 2020-03-04 Transcending the Postmodern: The Singular Response of Literature to the Transmodern Paradigm gathers an introduction and ten chapters concerned with the issue of Transmodernity as addressed by and presented in contemporary novels hailing from various parts of the English-speaking world. Building on the theories of Transmodernity propounded by Rosa María Rodríguez Magda, Enrique Dussel, Marc Luyckx Ghisi and Irena Ateljevic, inter alia, it investigates the links between Transmodernity and such categories as Postmodernity, Postcolonialism and Transculturalism with a view to help define a new current in contemporary literary production. The chapters either follow the main theoretical drives of the transmodern paradigm or problematise them. In so doing, they branch out towards various issues that have come to inspire contemporary novelists, among which: the presence of the past, the ascendance of new technologies, multiculturalism, terrorism, and also vulnerability, interdependence, solidarity and ecology in a globalised context. In so doing, it interrogates the ethics, aesthetics and politics of the contemporary novel in English.

ecocriticism indian authors: Asian American Literature and the Environment Lorna Fitzsimmons, Youngsuk Chae, Bella Adams, 2014-10-24 This book is a ground-breaking transnational study of representations of the environment in Asian American literature. Extending and renewing Asian American studies and ecocriticism by drawing the two fields into deeper dialogue, it brings Asian American writers to the center of ecocritical studies. This collection demonstrates the distinctiveness of Asian American writers' positions on topics of major concern today: environmental justice, identity and the land, war environments, consumption, urban environments, and the environment and creativity. Represented authors include Amy Tan, Maxine Hong Kingston, Ruth Ozeki, Ha Jin, Fae Myenne Ng, Le Ly Hayslip, Lan Cao, Mitsuye Yamada, Lawson Fusao Inada, Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston, Milton Murayama, Don Lee, and Hisaye Yamamoto. These writers provide a range of perspectives on the historical, social, psychological, economic, philosophical, and aesthetic responses of Asian Americans to the environment conceived in relation to labor, racism, immigration, domesticity, global capitalism, relocation, pollution, violence, and religion. Contributors apply a diversity of critical frameworks, including critical radical race studies, counter-memory studies, ecofeminism, and geomantic criticism. The book presents a compelling and timely green perspective through which to understand key works of Asian American literature and leads the field of ecocriticism into neglected terrain.

ecocriticism indian authors: Writing the Postcolonial Nation: Contemporary Indian Voices in English Dr. Priyanka Singla , Dr. Hardeep Singh, 2024-04-12 In recent years, the literature of India has seen a remarkable resurgence with writers exploring diverse themes and narratives that reflect the complexity of the postcolonial experience. This edited volume, Writing the Postcolonial Nation: Contemporary Indian Voices in English, brings together a collection of essays that delve into the portrayal of postcolonial features in the works of contemporary Indian writers. In the realm of literature, the impact of colonialism on the cultural and social fabric of a nation is a topic that has garnered much attention and debate. The echoes of colonial rule reverberate through the works of contemporary Indian writers in English, as they grapple with the legacy of imperialism and its lasting effects on their identities and narratives. This edited volume delves into the portrayal of postcolonial features in the works of these authors, exploring how they navigate and negotiate the complexities of a postcolonial world. The essays in this collection offer a multi-faceted analysis of contemporary Indian writing in English, examining the various ways in which writers engage with and subvert colonial discourse. From reimagining historical events to challenging traditional power structures, these authors use their stories to reclaim and redefine their cultural identities in a postcolonial context. Through a lens of postcolonial theory, the contributors to this volume shed light on how Indian writers in English interrogate the legacies of colonialism and envision new possibilities for a decolonized future. One of the central themes explored in this book is the notion of hybridity, a concept that reflects the blending of multiple cultural influences and identities. Indian writers in English often navigate this space of hybridity, drawing from both indigenous traditions and Western literary forms to create works that are uniquely Indian yet globally resonant. By embracing their diverse cultural heritage, these authors challenge essentialist notions of identity and offer a nuanced understanding of postcolonial experience. Another key focus of this volume is the concept of agency, as seen through the portrayal of marginalized voices and perspectives in contemporary Indian literature. Through the lens of post colonialism, the contributors to this volume analyze how writers empower themselves and their communities through storytelling, reclaiming their narratives from the confines of colonial discourse. By centering the voices of the marginalized and dispossessed, these authors challenge the dominant narratives of power and privilege and offer a counter-narrative that speaks truth to power. As editors of this volume, we hope to contribute to the ongoing conversation surrounding post colonialism and contemporary Indian literature in English.

ecocriticism indian authors: The Environmental Justice Reader Joni Adamson, Mei Mei Evans, Rachel Stein, 2002-11 A collection of essays on the environmental justice movement, examining the various ways that teaching, art, and political action affect change in environmental awareness and policies.

ecocriticism indian authors: Figuring Animals M. Pollock, C. Rainwater, 2016-10-03 This is a collection of fifteen essays which expose weaknesses in western epistemological frames of reference that for centuries have limited our views, and, thus, our experiences of animal being, including our own. The volume contributes to current discussions of new ways of seeing the other inhabitants of this world and more effective ways of sharing the world with them. The contributors draw on and complement the growing field of ecocriticism, but because the contributors draw on an array of disciplinary and cultural perspectives, it will appeal to a wide audience, ranging from literary scholars, philosophers, art historians, anthropologists, and cultural historians (including graduate and undergraduate students in all these disciplines), to laypersons interested in nature writing and environmental issues.

ecocriticism indian authors: Linda Hogan and Contemporary Taiwanese Writers Peter I-min Huang, 2015-12-16 Linda Hogan and Contemporary Taiwanese Writers: an Ecocritical Study of Indigeneities and Environment is the first full length single-authored study of Native American writer Linda Hogan and the first book to address Hogan's poetry and prose primarily from ecocritical perspectives (inclusive of ecofeminism, environmental justice, postcolonial ecocriticism, and animal studies). It also is unique for the reason that it is a comparative study of the work of Hogan and writings by Taiwanese environmental writers, scholars, and activists. Chapter One, which serves as the introduction to the book, written by and from the perspective of an indigene, begins by giving readers a glimpse into the kind of world in the east in which the author came of age. It then relates this world to the western worlds that Hogan writes about in her poetry and prose. Chapter Two focuses on Hogan's most recently published novel, People of the Whale (2008), and on the arguments that the novel makes about the environmentally unsustainable acts of corporate globalization that involve the trade in endangered animal species. Huang relates those arguments to the oil industry in Taiwan and to the extirpation of cetacean species in the waters of Taiwan by this industry. Chapter Three is an analysis of the novel Mean Spirit (1990). Huang reads this novel mostly through the lens of environmental justice arguments. Chapter Four addresses the novel Solar Storms (1995) from the perspective of ecofeminist theory and in the context of the issue of the escalation of mega-dams in East Asia. Chapter Five analyses the novel Power from animal studies perspectives. Chapter Six is a comparative studies reading of poems by several prominent Chinese, Taiwanese, and Aboriginal poets—Taiwanese poet Ka-hsiang Liu, Paiwan poet Mona Neng, Atayal poet Walis Noka, and Chinese-Taiwanese poet Guangzhong Yu—and Hogan's latest collection of poetry, entitled Dark. Sweet: New & Selected Poems (2014). In his reading of this work, Huang relies on a definition of "ecopoetry" in Ann Fisher-Wirth and Laura-Gray Street's recently published The Ecopoetry Anthology (2013). He also brings together the main theoretical ecocritical terms that he discusses in the previous chapters.

ecocriticism indian authors: Reflections on Ecotextuality from India Jibu Mathew George, Mathew John Kokkatt, 2023-07-10 This book is an authentic collection of critical essays compiled as part of response to a situation that is hazardous to life on our planet – the current ecological crisis. Its twelve chapters innovatively engage with multiple facets of the intricate relationship between literature and ecology, covering texts, genres, movements, philosophies, and contexts spanning a long period of historical time and a variety of milieus. The volume adopts an approach that unravels the premises and assumptions that sustain the modern world view and contemporary knowledge systems.
