Lanford Wilson: Playwright Background and Style

Lanford Wilson is recognized as one of the most influential American playwrights of the late twentieth century. His writing is characterized by naturalistic dialogue, nuanced character development, and a focus on interpersonal relationships. Wilson's body of work often explores themes of identity, alienation, and emotional vulnerability. "Burn This," written in 1986, stands as one of his most celebrated plays, reflecting his signature style and thematic preoccupations.

Wilson was a founding member of the Circle Repertory Company, where "Burn This" premiered. His commitment to authentic, emotionally charged storytelling resonated with audiences and critics alike. The play's raw exploration of grief and transformation is indicative of Wilson's ability to capture the complexities of human emotion. His influence persists in contemporary theatre, with "Burn This" frequently cited as a quintessential example of modern American drama.

Thematic Analysis of "Burn This"

Grief and Emotional Turmoil

One of the central themes in "Burn This" is grief. The play opens in the aftermath of Robbie's death, casting a shadow over the lives of the remaining characters. The narrative examines the unpredictable ways individuals process loss and the impact it has on their relationships. Wilson's depiction of grief is authentic and unflinching, allowing audiences to relate to the characters' struggles.

Identity and Self-Discovery

Identity is a recurring motif throughout "Burn This." The characters grapple with questions of self-definition, both in their personal lives and artistic pursuits. Anna, the protagonist, undergoes a profound transformation as she confronts her own desires, ambitions, and fears. The play's exploration of identity extends to themes of sexuality, creative expression, and the search for meaning in the wake of tragedy.

Artistic Expression and Creativity

Art and creativity serve as both a refuge and a source of conflict for the characters. Their involvement in dance and creative arts reflects the ways in which artistic pursuits can help navigate emotional pain. Wilson uses the motif of dance to symbolize movement, change, and the possibility of renewal. The creative process becomes a means of healing and self-discovery.

- Grief and emotional fallout after loss
- Transformation through self-discovery
- Art as a tool for healing

- Complexity of interpersonal relationships

Character Study in “Burn This”

Anna

Anna is the emotional center of “Burn This.” As a dancer and choreographer, she is deeply affected by Robbie’s death, and her journey forms the backbone of the play. Anna’s evolution from vulnerability to empowerment is meticulously crafted, showcasing Wilson’s skill in character development. Her interactions with other characters, especially Pale, force her to confront her own fears and desires.

Pale

Pale, Robbie’s brother, is one of the most complex and dynamic figures in the play. His arrival disrupts the equilibrium of Anna’s world, bringing intensity and unpredictability. Pale’s raw emotionality and volatile behavior challenge Anna and the other characters to reconsider their perspectives. The relationship between Anna and Pale is fraught with tension, passion, and mutual transformation.

Larry and Burton

Larry and Burton serve as both foils and confidants to Anna. Larry provides comic relief and insight, while Burton’s relationship with Anna highlights themes of intimacy and artistic compromise. Each character contributes to the play’s exploration of human connection and the search for authenticity. Their interactions reflect the broader social and cultural dynamics of the era.

Symbolism and Motifs in the Play

Fire and Burning

The title “Burn This” is emblematic of the play’s central symbolism. Fire represents destruction, transformation, and renewal throughout the narrative. Characters are compelled to confront what must be left behind and what can be forged anew from the ashes of loss. The motif of burning is woven into the dialogue and staging, reinforcing the play’s emotional intensity.

Dance and Movement

Dance is a recurring motif that reflects change and emotional expression. Anna's work as a dancer and choreographer parallels her personal journey, illustrating the relationship between art and life. Movement becomes a metaphor for the characters' struggles, aspirations, and evolution, emphasizing the transformative power of creativity.

Isolation and Connection

Isolation and the yearning for connection are central to the play's atmosphere. The characters' emotional isolation is juxtaposed with their attempts to forge meaningful relationships. Wilson's use of confined spaces and intimate settings amplifies this motif, highlighting the tension between solitude and companionship.

Historical and Cultural Context

"Burn This" premiered in 1987, at a time when American theatre was undergoing significant transition. The play's themes reflect the anxieties and aspirations of the era, particularly in urban settings. Issues of sexuality, artistic ambition, and the search for authenticity resonated strongly with audiences facing the complexities of contemporary life.

Wilson's play also addresses the AIDS crisis indirectly, as Robbie's death and the impact on his friends mirror the widespread loss and uncertainty of the time. The cultural milieu of the 1980s informs the characters' struggles, making "Burn This" a poignant reflection of its historical moment.

Critical Reception and Legacy

"Burn This" received critical acclaim upon its debut, praised for its emotional depth and innovative staging. Critics lauded Wilson's ability to capture the intricacies of human relationships and the authenticity of his dialogue. The play's nuanced portrayal of grief and transformation continues to be celebrated in both academic and theatrical circles.

Over the years, "Burn This" has maintained its relevance, with frequent revivals and adaptations. Its exploration of universal themes ensures its enduring appeal, while its influence on contemporary playwrights underscores its legacy in American theatre.

Recent Revivals

lanford wilson burn this analysis: The Ultimate Scene and Monologue Sourcebook Ed Hooks, 1994 Preparing for an audition and unsure of what you want to do? The Ultimate Scene and Monologue Sourcebook is the book you've been waiting for. Unlike "scene books" that reprint 50 to 75 monologues excerpted from plays but don't include any background information, this annotated guide tells you what you really need to know about audition material from more than 300 contemporary plays. Here is how the book works. Suppose that you're looking for a dramatic male/female scene. When you scan "Part One: Play Synopses and Analyses," you come across an entry for The Middle of the Night by Paddy Chayefsky. This is what you see: The Middle of the Night by Paddy Chayefsky (Samuel French) Synopsis: A kindly 53-year-old widower falls in love with a 23-year-old woman who is unhappily married to a musician. No one in their circle of acquaintances approves of this union, but their love is true. Analysis: Excellent human drama, frequently touching. Actors who play the widower need to have a good feel for New York City/Brooklyn speech patterns. This sensitivity isn't as essential for the part of the woman. All levels. Scenes/Monologues: Male Monologues (1), Female/Female Scenes (1), Male/Female Scenes (2) In addition to basic information about the play (author and publisher), the entry provides you with the story line, a critique of the play, and the number of audition-worthy monologues and scenes it contains. If the description of this particular play piques your interest, your next step is to turn to "Part Six: Male/Female Scenes" for specifics about the selection. This is what you'll see there: The Middle of the Night by Paddy Chayefsky (Samuel French) Drama: Act II, Scene 2, pp. 40-44; The Manufacturer (53) and The (23). After an unsatisfactory attempt at lovemaking, The Manufacturer feels awful that he wasn't able to perform ually. The is very understanding. He then asks her to marry him. The actor playing The Manufacturer must have a good feel for regional New York speech patterns. This skill is less critical for the actress playing The . Start, The Manufacturer: "I'm sorry, Betty." End, The Manufacturer: "Oh, my sweet , I love you so much you don't know. If you change your mind tomorrow, I won't be angry with you. I won't lie to you, Betty. I'm afraid." This entry tells you what type of scene this is (dramatic), where you'll find the selection (act, scene, and page numbers), the length of the scene, the names and ages of the characters, the context in which the characters are speaking, and the first and last lines of the scene. If the material seems appropriate, all you have to do is get a copy of the play and get to work. Because The Ultimate Scene and Monologue Sourcebook enables you to make informed decisions about the suitability of more than 1,000 monologues and scenes-which you can find easily through the book's extensive cross indexes—you'll gain a critical edge in the auditioning process.
